ABSTRACT

Earth science education needs to be relevant to students in order to make them aware of the serious problems facing the planet. In an effort to insure that this need is meet, the Denver Earth Science Project has set as one of their goals the development of new earth science curriculum materials for teachers. This document provides a collection of activities developed and used by teachers to enhance the students' understanding of the earth sciences. The six units are entitled: (1) "Oil-What Is It Used For?"; (2) "Geography-Where Has Oil Been Found?"; (3) "Oil Generation"; (4) "What Is An Oil Field?"; (5) "Where Do You Look for Oil?"; and (6) "Gushers 'n Dusters (A Simulation Game)."
